COWLEY, the gentle shepherd of the New York Foll, must resign himself to a year's separation from his little wife. So says the Supreme Court.

GARFIELD and Arthur, and Weaver and Chambers, form two sides of the great political triangle. Cincinnati will slap in the other side in a few days.

It does not seem hardly the fair thing to resurrect old wood cuts of executed criminals and try to pass them off as portraits of Presidential candidates.

A BRIEFLESS barrister at St. Louis, hopeless of a fortune through the law's delay, has been detected making bank bills and lead nickels on his own account.

THIRTY families from among the very poorest of Connecticut peasants sailed for America yesterday. They hope to take a new lease on life in the land of plenty.

TITUSVILLE indulged in a two hundred and seventy-five thousand barrel bonfire yesterday. These little illuminations come high, but the oil regions must have them.

"WINE, women, 2:40 horses, and a cashier's trip to Europe," was the inscription which a New Jersey bank might properly have written above its closed doors yesterday.

THE Greenbackers could not be bamboozled into dilly-dallying in the interests of Chicago hotel keepers. They kept up all night, but their nominations at daybreak, and adjourned sine die before breakfast.

THE right of a State to pass laws requiring peddlers or traveling agents and drummers to pay a specific license has been affirmed by the United States Supreme Court. A case arose for its adjudication growing out of a recent law passed by the Legislature of Tennessee imposing a tax of $15 upon sewing machine agents.

The Howe Sewing Machine Company of Connecticut paid the tax under protest and appealed to the courts to test the constitutionality of the law. The Supreme Court of Tennessee held that as the tax was levied on all peddlers of sewing machines alike, no matter where said machines were manufactured, the law was valid. This decision was sustained by the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Justice Swayne in giving the decision of the Court remarked that a State can not lawfully impose a tax upon a citizen of another State which it does not impose upon its own citizens, nor can it lay a higher tax upon peddlers from another State than is levied on its own peddlers under like circumstances. The real question is whether there is any discrimination in favor of the citizen of the State which enacted the law. If there is the law is unconstitutional. No discrimination of this kind is made in the Tennessee statute imposing the tax upon sewing machines. A somewhat similar case arose in Nevada and was decided in the United States Circuit Court. The Legislature of that State passed a law imposing a license fee of $25 per month upon all traveling merchants, agents and drummers, and in default of such payment imposed a heavy fine. It was held in this case that the statute, making no discrimination against the citizens or products of other States, was valid.

"ALL IS VANITY."

It is somewhat mortifying to the vanity of those who imagine themselves the pivot upon which the world revolves to see how little they are missed in the march of human affairs when they either accidentally or designedly drop out of sight for a time on the great stage of mundane affairs. Politicians may for a while fill a larger share of the public eye than any or indeed all others, and yet their conspicuity is more often the result of adventitious circumstances than their own internal greatness.

Death overtakes them or party issues shift suddenly from their moorings, and like the kaleidoscope, other figures glide into prominence, and the late popular idol is forgotten. Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Douglas, Morton—all have stood before the political world the cynosure of all eyes, and yet, they have each in turn passed away, while still the world moves on apparently without a jar.

Editors have founded journals that seemed the very embodiment of their individuality, and yet death when it came to claim them for its own has seen the hands of others grasp the pen, and ere the ink is hardly dry upon the page the shock to the public, busy with its own affairs, has seemingly passed away.

Greeley, with his Tribune that for years was the very essence of his idiosyncrasies, was gathered to his fathers, but the great journal of which he laid the cornerstone is greater now by far than Greeley living ever dared to dream.

Raymond planned his New York Times, and yet the Times to-day is abler, greater, worthier, in other hands than even the versatile and high-minded Raymond aspired in his brightest imaginings to make it.

And even more remarkable than these is the Herald of the younger Bennett, the present marvel of successful journalism throughout the world. When the elder James Gordon Bennett died how many predicted the decadence of that great paper from its then conspicuous eminence?

The New York Herald of to-day, so incomparably greater, better, more profitable to its owner and successful in all that constitutes a real newspaper, to what it was when the younger Bennett seized its helm, is a conspicuous instance, if more is needed, to show that no man fills so large a niche in the world's affairs but that his place may be filled, and just as well filled, by another, if that other can be discovered.

But for all that the flies upon the wheels of the chariots of human progress will continue to puff themselves with pride at the successful manner in which they continue to guide the car of destiny.

SPRIT OF THE PRESS.

The English Papers of This Morning.

The Enquirer says: The nomination of General Garfield by the Chicago Convention has unquestionably strengthened the chances of Mr. Justice Field for the nomination at Cincinnati. The record of General Garfield upon the Chinese question has placed the fifteen Pacific Electoral votes within the easy grasp of the Democratic party. Tammany is coming to Cincinnati with a flourish. They will push through to Cincinnati in a train of palace cars, while the "regulars" will come by easy stages—in a kind of "go-as-you-please" style. Tammany will be here for the purpose of demonstrating by oral and spectacular argument that Tilden can not carry New York. A Sherman Club in New York threatens to nominate Sherman for President in 1884. This is persecuting a man in affliction. The Presidential disease is a deadly one, and Sherman should be given every chance to get well of it. He should be preserved to the country as a dreadful example. It is undeniable that in the south, where Tilden four years ago commanded three-fourths of the votes, he has comparatively little strength in 1880. Illinois reports this morning practically no votes for Tilden. Ohio and Indiana have an embarrassment of candidates from within their own borders. It is undeniable, also, that the feeling against Tilden in New York is far more intensely bitter than it was four ago. There was opposition then; but there had been no revolt of seventy-seven thousand voters in New York against Tilden four years ago. There seems no possibility of allaying this wretched hostility to Tilden in his own State, whether that hostility be right or wrong, Democratic or un-Democratic.

The Commercial says: An effort is being made to get up a Seymour boom. And now they charge that Garfield is a Christian statesman. If Mr. Thurman would rather be Vice President than shrink from the public gaze in private life, he can probably have a place on the Cincinnati ticket. And in the meantime Mr. Justice Field is picking up a good many votes, and coming to the front with formidable force. This may interfere with arrangements. If anybody wishes to attack the modern French novel, let him do it by all means. Books which habitually break all the ten commandments in the most brilliant and fascinating sentences are very proper objects for the moralist to make war upon. But the censor should be careful lest he really mistake the best ones for the worst ones. The fault of the Sherman campaign was in the assumption that it was possible to conciliate the Third-termers. We said long before the Convention that the Grant men were like the old Russian soldiers—they must be killed and then knocked down; and of Grant, that he must be (metaphorically) knoed down and dragged out—that is to say, there was to be no tariff, and the Third-termers would neither surrender nor compromise. Sherman and Blaine beat Grant. Both mortally offended the bosses by standing in Grant's way as candidates. One of them should have been nominated, and one would have been, we believe, if it had not been for the squabble in Ohio. It was essential, however, that Blaine should fight the Third-termers in Illinois. If it had not been for that brave battle Grant would have been nominated.

The Gazette says: The Greenbackers will enter the Presidential contest with General Weaver, of Iowa, for their standard bearer, his nomination having been reached in Chicago yesterday morning after an all night session of the Convention. The Pomeroy-Hoyt wing of the party have not yet named their candidate. Wherever there is one Greenback candidate, there is certain to be two. The party has a fatal facility for dividing. We observe that the Democrats are rapidly coming to the conclusion that the Chicago ticket is weak, very weak, and that the Cincinnati nominee will be able easily to beat it. Some of the sagacious leaders of the party talked differently when Garfield's name was first announced, but they have been either persuaded to the contrary, or surprised by the result.

The Fourth termers consider it their last game, and they will play desperately. Nearly all the delegates to the Cincinnati convention are chosen. They are mostly uneducated, but pains have been taken to ascertain their preferences. It is asserted that there will be 204 votes for Tilden and 534 against him. As it will require 492 to nominate under the two-thirds rule, the chances of the elector statesman appear to be slim. It is not quite time, though, to count him out of the race. He has a large reserve of the kind of arguments that persuade in Democratic conventions. Garfield has been in public life and in prominent positions for near twenty years. If he should die to-day he would leave to his wife and children, besides a good name, the small farm with its modest improvements in Northern Ohio. He owns a house in Washington, but the proceeds of that would no more than pay his debts. It is not pleasant to allude to these private matters in public, but it is the shortest and easiest way to answer the charges of corruption that have already been made. Neither can it be said that Garfield spent much money. His habits meet this point sufficiently. He has, from choice, and necessity also, been economical. His mind has never been in the direction of money getting, and while he is a great man and is destined to rise higher, it is not probable he will ever be a rich man. The darts that have been shot at Garfield are broken and lie harmless at his feet.

The German Papers.

The Volksfreund says: Kentucky is again for Tilden. In 1876 it gave him a majority of 62,534 votes. Such a majority is not to be despised.—What will Grant do now? He will never again be President. That is settled. We advise a new journey. After having seen so many monarchies he should go to Switzerland and there study a Republican Government. Perhaps he would learn more there than he has done on his trip around the world.

The Volksblatt says: Garfield never waived the bloody shirt.—Senator Thurman is now being often, especially in Washington and New York, mentioned for the Vice Presidency.

The Freie Presse says: The following question is now making the rounds in Republican circles: "What will the Volksblatt, or rather its chief editor do if the late political boss friend, Sam W. Tilden, could get the Democratic Presidential nomination?"

Political.

The Central Union Republican Club will hold a meeting at Vogel's Hall, on Elm street, to ratify the Chicago nominations. The Fourteenth Ward Garfield and Arthur Club will open their new Wigwam, at the southeast corner of Linn and Livingston streets, this evening. Speeches will be made by Hon. Benj. Butterworth, Hon. Stanley Matthews, Hon. Jacob D. Cox and others.

The Young Men's Republican Club held a meeting at Washington Park Hall last evening. The Board of Directors of the Club were instructed to provide for a mass meeting for next Friday evening at the Washington Park Hall. A committee was appointed to revise the rules governing the Club, and report at the next meeting.

Archery Club Contest.

An exciting match was held between the two rival Archery Clubs, of College Hill, the Waverly and the College Hill Clubs, yesterday afternoon, on the grounds of Mrs. J. C. C. Holenshade. The Waverlys scored a victory after a hard struggle by a score of 1,660 to 1,073. A brilliant reception was given after the match at the residence of Mr. D. B. Pierson, Esq. The following is the names of the members who were pitted against each other:

Waverly—Mr. C. S. Upton, Miss Holenshade, Mr. J. H. Barker, Miss Pierson, Mr. Frank Barker, Miss Simms, Mr. Ed. Bruce, Miss Worthington.

College Hill—Mr. Adam Gray, Miss Morrison, Mr. L. E. Aiken, Mrs. DeGoyer, Mr. Wm. Wilder, Miss Gray, Mr. C. K. Wild, Miss Cary.

Board of Aldermen.

The regular session of the Board of Aldermen was held yesterday afternoon. An ordinance to appropriate $1,800 from the General Fund to defray the expenses of the election held April 5th, 1880, was passed.

A resolution authorizing the Mayor to receive $4 as a license fee from each person who paid $20 for the same subsequent to June 1st, 1879, was adopted.

A resolution to modify the leases of park and other property was adopted.

The second Saturday evening parade of the Lytle Greys will take place this evening at half past six. The line of march is as follows: From Armory to Walnut, thence to Eighth, thence to Vine, thence to Fourth, thence to Central avenue, thence to Seventh, thence to Race, thence to Eighth, thence to Walnut, thence to Court and the Armory, where parade will be dismissed.

The grand Steamboat Excursion to Parker's Grove to-morrow, Sunday, June 13th, will go, rain or shine.

A Life in Danger.

This is the fact concerning every man, woman and child who has in the body the seeds of kidney, bladder, liver and urinary disease, from which may spring Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Such a prospect is simply terrible; and it is the duty of every one to be rid of the danger at once. To do this, infallibly, use Hunt's Kidney and Liver Medicine.

OUR BUSY MEN.

Here and There Among Our Hives of Industry.

The Missouri Democratic delegation have their headquarters at Reid's Hotel during the Convention. They number about fifty.

"The Up-town Printers" at 392 Central avenue have recently enlarged their office and increased their facilities. They are rushed with orders for good work.

R. J. Berne, formerly of the Magnolia House, has established himself in business at No. 59 Vine street, two doors from his old location where he will welcome former friends on his own account.

The Robinson Wagon Company have completed their new building, foot of Eighth street. This company have now under roof the largest carriage and wagon manufacturing establishment in the United States.

Mr. Jas. J. Cannon, No. 6 Mound street, makes a special feature of repairing and renovating furniture. It is surprising how much improvement a small outlay will make in the appearance of a parlor or chamber set.

The new rolling mill at Cullom's is starting up under very favorable auspices, having orders for quite a large amount of their product ahead. Sheet and boiler iron will be the principal part of their manufacture.

The rebuilding of the Cincinnati Cooperative at Riverside, lately destroyed by fire, is progressing rapidly and the works will be in running order again by the 1st of August. None of the employees are compelled to be idle, as Mr. DeBus stands work for them all.

The new Central Hotel, on Elm near Fourth, is getting a reputation for superior excellence in its cuisine. The proprietors make a feature of their dinner trade, and furnish a bill-of-fare that can not be excelled in the city. Everything about the house shows that the proprietors are masters of the situation, and in every sense know how to keep a hotel.

The Pacific Garden, adjoining the Atlantic, on Vine street, has been superbly fitted up, and was opened for business Wednesday evening by the Crescent Brewery Company, of Aurora, Ind. There was a fine pond and a large crowd at the opening, with plenty of enthusiasm. Mr. O. Quent is the manager of the place, and John Fischer is business agent for the Company.

Schmidt Brothers have been very ready to respond to the call for facilities for river bathing for ladies. They have made such alterations and enlargements at their bath-house as were needed, and have fitted up a new and comfortable parlor for their new patrons, and set apart two days in each week for them, when the entire establishment will be for the use of the ladies. Lady attendants will have charge, and instruction in the art of swimming will be given to all desiring.

The Delaware Chair Company, of Delaware, O., have recently doubled their manufacturing and now give employment to 100 hands. Their double-caned chairs received the first grand prize and diploma at the Centennial Exhibition for utility, strength, comfort and cheapness. They ship their goods to all parts of the United States and have recently made several shipments to the Southern States via Cincinnati Southern Railroad.

The Mechanicsburg Machine Company, manufacturers of the Baker Screw-feed Gun Drills, have spared neither labor nor expense to make their drill in reality what it is in appearance, the best drill in the market. Since its introduction, some five years ago, the Baker Screw-feed has commanded the attention and endorsement of a continually widening circle of grain-growers. Its record has been satisfactory to those who have used it, and the manufacturers have reason to be proud of the laurels which its merit have won for them. This company gives employment to over sixty skilled workmen, among whom are the following: Wm. E. Gordon, E. D. Cheney, S. M. Harper, M. L. Legge, J. W. Needham, W. L. Newman, Joseph Grase, G. W. McIntyre and Fred Bates. Mr. J. C. Baker, one of the proprietors, is acting superintendent of the establishment, and is also associated with J. R. Van Doren in the manufacture of Packham's patent stove pipe, elbow, and conductor pipe-crimper.

The Chambers' Lightning Protection Company are putting up large numbers of their new device for affording protection to buildings against the danger of electricity or lightning. Unlike the old method of attracting the lightning to the building, and then by means of rods leading it into the earth, the new idea is, by a system of perfect electrical insulation, to keep the building and the earth, to repel or prevent the stroke. Nothing that has been devised in this line for the last quarter of a century has created so much interest upon the subject. The theory has been submitted to the most thorough and exhaustive tests by the best electricians and experts in this country and Europe and has in every case proved satisfactory. The Company have fitted up an electrical apparatus at their office, corner of Central avenue and Fourth street, using the celebrated Holt electrical machine, by which they illustrate the working of their system.

THE DEMOCRACY.

Arranging for the National Convention.

The local committee having in charge the arrangements for the Democratic National Convention, are busy at work in getting things in order. They have under their charge all of Music Hall proper, and all the rooms in the main hall, including Dexter Hall. The former will be used by the different Committees, the latter as a consultation room for delegates.

The stage will be resplendent with flowers and evergreens, bunting and pictures of statesmen and heroes. Most of the paragon will be reserved for delegates. Behind the delegates will be seated the alternates, who will be separated from the spectators in that part of the building by a railing. A number of prominent citizens have signified their willingness to act as Sergeants-at-Arms, to keep order and seat the assembly.

The cho us seats on the stage will be reserved for ladies, the floor of the stage for the officers of the Convention and prominent men of the country.

The Western Union Telegraph Company will be situated in the northern area of the Main Hall. They will be provided with all instruments, the operators of which are to make duplicate copies of matter when required by a correspondent of several papers. The Atlantic & Pacific Company will be on the south side of the building, and have the same kind of arrangements. The American Union Company will have quarters adjoining the Atlantic & Pacific. Altogether there will be sixty-six operators in the building. It is computed that the combined force will be able to transmit one hundred and fifty thousand words per hour.

The Democratic Club of Hamilton County have almost perfected their arrangements for the reception and entertainment of all delegates and organizations attending the Convention, and the plans adopted have been heartily indorsed by the Local Committee. Below is given a list of the Sub-Committees as appointed by the Reception Committee:
